Element B: Documentation and Analysis of Prior Design Attempts

Dormitory residents and dormitory guests of our boarding school need a device to place their shower products. This is because they would want their shower products to be easily accessible in the communal shower. They would also like to do this without having a personal shower caddy and without setting it on the floor because it is unsanitary. The main stakeholders are the dormitory residents. They need a solution because the showers in the dormitory were not built with a solution to this problem and dormitory residents are not permitted to leave their shower products in the shower area. The only place to put a device in the dormitory showers are on a relatively narrow divider wall of less than an inch wide.

A corner suction caddy has lots of storage, it does not need to be carried around or require use of power tools to install it, making it an easy installation (Amazon). Some flaws are that it uses suction cups which could fall, and it takes up significant space. This would not fully meet our stakeholders needs because it is over the budget of $10 per shower. But, this could meet stakeholders needs if the 2-pack was split for 2 showers, costing $8 per shower.

Some positives of corner tension rod shelves are that it uses extra space in the corner while also having significant storage. This tension rod could fall and it could also be too short to span the whole height of the shower. The floor is uneven and the ceiling may be too tall. This may also not fit stakeholder needs because it is not easily removable and could not be carried with one hand.

Wall mounting shelves need no other parts, only the one piece, and it had a relatively low price of $5 per shower (Amazon). But these shelves have negatives including low storage, not waterproof, and user's shower products could fall off easily. Wall mounting shelves would not meet our stakeholders needs because the shelves are not waterproof, would not fit 5 bottles of shower products, and would most likely have standing water.

Our stakeholder is currently solving the problem by having a shower caddy that can fit on the side shower wall. The current solution can be taken in and out of the shower, has a low price, and can fit on the divider walls. Positive aspects of a portable plastic shower caddy is it can be taken in and out of the shower, it is a personal item, and it can fit in multiple places. But, it could break easily and the user has to purchase it themselves before use. The current solution is smaller than requirements of 6in deep and 12in wide, fits 4-5 bottles, and has small holes in the bottom to insure water does not stand in the bottom of the caddy. Among the other positives, the current solution is also elevated off the ground and is able to be removed with one hand. This attempt would not satisfy our stakeholders because they would have to have previously bought it themselves, it can break easily depending on use and care, and the user has to purchase it themselves for greater than $10 in advance.
