

Element A: Presentation and Justification of the Problem

Our problem that we are focusing on is the kidnapping and missing persons crisis, Children, the Public, Families, Police, FBI, Kidnappers; are all involved in this problem. The problem is children/teens are getting kidnapped and there is no apparent solution to solving this problem, and there are many missing person cases that are making no progress and not getting solved. This problem occurs in Neighborhoods, Schools, Healthcare Facilities, and the Public because kidnappers have the ability to kidnap where there is no supervision or security. This issue is massive considering this is happening worldwide. Kidnapping is a problem that happens worldwide, not just in America. In fact, most kidnappings occur in Mexico, Venezuela, and Nigeria. The problem can occur day or night. When it does occur, most kidnappers tend to take children in either very crowded places or where there is no parental or guardian supervision. Kidnapping is a problem that happens very often, approximately over 840,000 people are reported missing each year and the F.B.I estimates that between 85 and 90 percent of these children. The stakeholders of this problem are the Local Police Department and School Police. Kidnapping is such a major problem in the U.S. and the world. It happens once every 40 seconds in the world and leads to a lot of people getting hurt or worse. Even if we can save one life it will change a family. It is very important to us and really needs a better solution.

Cites:

WHERE DO MOST INFANT ABDUCTIONS OCCUR?

kidnapping-statistics

Reducing the risk of kidnapping

missing-and-abducted-children

Child Crime Prevention & Safety Center