Element J: Documentation of Evaluation

In the boys dorms the dorm residents need a place to put their toiletries because there is not a built-in shelf in the communal showers and setting things on the floor is unsanitary. Solving the problem can help the dorm students place their toiletries somewhere without having to set it down on the ground. The problem is that there is nowhere to hang your shampoo and that leads to people putting it on the ground.

Mr. K is qualified because he is in E4USA and he knows a lot about the boys' dorms. Ms. Z is our E4USA teacher and is fully qualified to review our testing procedures. The dorm residents are stakeholders because they are the ones that get affected by this change the most and they are qualified from having experience with living in the dorms.

Mr. K told us what to change on our original design which was to add a hook and then he gave us feedback on whether we should install it or not. Ms. Z reviewed our testing procedure and said that it was good and we met some of the criteria. She also told us that we could not bolt the caddy in so we had to make a hook to hold it up. The dorm residents said that they would like to have it installed, The dorm residents who asked were students D, W, and N. Mr. S and Dr. H looked at our proposed solution and they said that we overall it was good but Mr. S said that dividers would be good to sort the toiletries, while Dr. H said that we should add more space for various things. These suggestions did not change our final product because we were considering how much space it would take up in the already small showers.

The feedback impacted our design because one of our stakeholders suggested that we have hooks on our design and that is what we placed on at the end. Mr. K also said that our holes should be placed equally and find a way to attach it to the wall. We got other suggestions like where we should make it bigger and more square so that more shampoo can fit.
