

Element L:

Advice to a group working on a project like this in the future is to assign roles. Not only assigning them but thinking through who would be the best fit for the given jobs. Time management is a big part of getting your stakeholder the best product possible. If things are rushed or looked over, they can show to be a bigger problem later in the process if they are not address immediately.