

We didn't manage to make a prototype quick enough to show the stakeholder. So she never fully evaluated it. However, she did love our design originally and thought it would make a good product overall. Our stakeholder had no questions regarding our idea because we never managed to fully build something.